Brand New Book  Print on Demand .The Committee of the University of New York chose a professor of the Aberdeen Free Church College as the first lecturer under the Charles F. Deems trust, which provides that the lectures shall treat of some one of the most important questions of Science and Philosophy, with special reference to its relation to the revealed truths of the Holy Scriptures and to the fundamental principles of Theistic Philosophy. The present volume is the result of Professor Iverach s acceptance of the post as thus defined. From a survey of some of the great branches of natural science the lecturer is able, in his opening chapter, to say on good grounds that the power at work in the world is an intelligent power, and that natural science, while it has given wonderful glimpses of knowledge to the men of the past century, leaves vast and numerous questions to be answered by philosophy and religion. The inorganic world is next regarded as a preparation for life, and the physical characteristics of life, its genesis, growth, and meaning and its rational implications are examined. When the lecturer proceeds to discuss the making of man, and the relation of the individual to the rest of the human family, he asks whether a rational religion is possible, and in the course of his reply makes some acute criticisms on the writings of Mr. Kidd and Mr. Balfour. Professor Iverach thinks that the method common to both is even worse than the results to which they come, and he regards the habit of setting part against part, and of straining the relation in which two or more elements in a larger unity stand to one another, until nothing but...
