In view of the fact that for the calendar year 1915 the average period of enrolment of 37,197 infants was but 104 days, this reduction of 50.9 per cent in the mortality rate may truly be described as remarkable. On the basis of an enrolment, in terms of infant-years, amounting to 10,663, and a saving per thousand infants enrolled of 42.84 lives, it would seem that as a result of the work done by the fifty-nine baby health stations operated by the city in 1915 approximately 457 lives of infants under one year of age were saved during the period of enrolment. This saving in lives meant a reduction in the mortality rate of the city of about 3.29 per thousand living births.1 1 Other life saving took place and other important benefits were conferred; see in this connection pages 96-98. Saving in Infant Lives by Municipal Baby Health Stations during the Home-Visiting Period from July 3 to September 11. This inquiry was undertaken in the hope of developing material for comparison with the work of homevisiting nurses. As a first step a study was made of infants under one year of age enrolled at the typical station of 244 Mulberry Street during the seventy-one days from July 3 to September 11, 1915. One hundred forty-five infants were on the rolls for a total of 6,352 days. This enrolment in terms of infant-years was eighty-nine, or 61.3 per cent...
