When taking down concrete forms, the toggle is held stationary against A HANDY TOOL FOR REMOVING the form, and, the lug catches in back of the piece being removed. Tongue-and-groove lumber can be pried off without breaking the match. This bar can be also used where boards can be taken down from the inside, and with it there is no need of scaffolding. It has a 3-foot handle and weighs about 8 pounds. A still heavier wrecking-bar with a 4-foot handle, the total weight of which is 14 pounds, is also made by this company, and is known as its NO. 3 bar. This is used for pulling off heavy braces and for the harder work of wrecking buildings and taking down concrete forms. The projecting lug furnishes a solid pry for the 10 to 1 leverage of this bar....
