Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Public Roads, Vol. 32: A Journal of Highway Research; April 1962-February 1964 This article focuses attention on some of the social effects and changes that have accrued from construction of modern highways. Knowledge of these social effects - both beneficial and undesirable - should be of assistance to those concerned with planning highways, especially during public hearings concerning the routes and the construction of the highways. It appears fundamea that the social effects attributed to previously constructed highways should be considered when a new highway or relocation of an existing highway is being planned. The requirement for public hearings on route location is a recognition of the need for consideration of highway effects, social as well as economic. At such hearings, socio-economic questions may loom large; for example, the likely effect of a highway relocation on schools, local government services, and residential areas may be of great concern to those that will be affected.
