Excerpt from Studies on the Morphology and Life History of Nematodes in the Genus Spironoura: With Five Plates and Two d104-Figures Because I have come to the conclusion that the separation of families, subfamilies, and genera should depend primarily upon the variations in the digestive and reproductive systems, I have placed greatest emphasis on the study of these two systems. When speaking of the reproductive system, I mean the genital tubes. I believe that male secondary organs, such as spicules, gubernaculum, and caudal papillae have been made to bear a disproportionately great part in diagnoses of groups of these ranks. Until general knowledge of fundamental types of the major systems is made available, our taxonomic schemes must remain unnatural and more or less makeshift.
