Not illustrated. 1917 Excerpt: .his obligations to Miss Pannebaker for supplying him with these important specimens and data concerning them. found absolutely no conclusive evidence, and, indeed, no indications, for that matter, that the chalcopryite and bornite are not of contemporaneous deposition. It is therefore believed that such is the case and that both sulphides in such instances are of hypogene origin. The photomicrograph, Plate X (A), shows the relationship of the two minerals so well that no further description is necessary. The supergene bornite, secondary to and replacing chalcopryite, occurs as veinlets in chalcopryite probably in the same manner as supergene chalcocite develops in bornite. The photomicrograph, Plate X (B), shows the typical form of occurrence of supergene bornite. It appears to the writer that the evidence that the bornite is of supergene origin and that it has replaced the chalcopryite along the fractures is perfectly clear. It was interesting to note that in some areas of the specimen, which showed to best advantage supergene bornite in hypogene chalcopryite, there was an appreciable amount of supergene chalcopryite occurring as a replacement of both hypogene and supergene bornite. This supergene and secondary chalcopryite is by no means abundant, but is found occasionally in ore from both the Cornfield Prospect No. 2 and the Glasscock shaft. It, so far as observations have extended, occurs only in two forms, as veinlets in minute fractures in the bornite, and as rims surrounding particles of bornite at their contact with the different gangue minerals....
