It will be proper to state here succinctly the causes which led to an interregnum in our annual fairs. This is the more necessary, because the subject is not in some quarters, referred to its proper cause. There are some who suppose that the American Institute suspended its annual fair because of the Crystal Palace. This is a great mistake. If the Institute would not forego its annual fair when the Crystal Palace was in the noontide of its glory, it is not to be supposed that it would do so when the Crystal Palace had lost all the prestige which greeted its opening. To do away any misapprehension which may still exist on this subject, it may be well to state the reasons which governed the Institute in suspending its fair for 1854. At its annual meeting in February, the New-York State Agricultural Society selected New-York city for holding its next annual fair. It needed but little reflection to convince all parties that two great fairs could not be held in this city at the same time, without materially detracting from the interest of both. But who should give way? The State Society took the initiative, and prior to our annual election appointed a committee to wait upon the Institute. The latter appointed a committee of conference, and an arrangement was effected, that the Institute would suspend...
