

Projections of Power: Framing News, Public Opinion, and U.S. Foreign Policy

By Robert M. Entman

The University of Chicago Press. Paperback. Book Condition: new. BRAND NEW, Projections of Power: Framing News, Public Opinion, and U.S. Foreign Policy, Robert M. Entman, To succeed in foreign policy, U.S. presidents have to sell their versions or framings of political events to the news media and to the public. But since the end of the Cold War, journalists have increasingly resisted presidential views, even offering their own spin on events. What, then, determines whether the media will accept or reject the White House perspective? And what consequences does this new media environment have for policymaking and public opinion? To answer these questions, Robert M. Entman develops a powerful new model of how media framing works—a model that allows him to explain why the media cheered American victories over small-time dictators in Grenada and Panama but barely noticed the success of far more difficult missions in Haiti and Kosovo. Discussing the practical implications of his model, Entman also suggests ways to more effectively encourage the exchange of ideas between the government and the media and between the media and the public. His book will be an essential guide for political scientists, students of the media, and anyone interested in the...

READ ONLINE
[8.59 MB]

Reviews

This publication is great. I have study and that i am sure that i will planning to read once more again in the foreseeable future. You will like how the article writer write this publication.

-- Dr. Uriel Kovacek

This created ebook is great. it was writtern very properly and useful. Its been printed in an exceedingly easy way in fact it is just right after i finished reading this pdf where basically modified me, alter the way i think.

-- Aglae Becker