Excerpt from Three Letters on the Generation of the Manhood of the Son of God: A Review of the Discussion on This Subject, and an Essay on the Nature and Cause of the Death of Christ, With Notes IN your first number, I see much said about the body assumed by the Son of God, and the nature of the flesh of which it was constituted, and the condition it was in when he assumed it; and from the whole of the statements, I conclude, that thus much is meant; namely, that the body prepared by God for his Son was substantially the flesh of sin, and not only having some likeness to it; but that at his resurrection a change ensued in it, so as that it then became sinless. Thus, for example; Mr. Irving says, in your 24th page, Christ, for the love he bore the human soul, consented to become a servant to her, and to be clothed with her body of sin and death. God prepared a body of fallen humanity for his Son, through the power of the Holy Ghost. And, in page 30, beavers of Christ, that he hears their naked and complete sufferings without a remedy, in order that, after he had sucked all the poison of suffering out, and into himself, into his body compressed all the venom of sin, he might, by dying, make it all die, and by rising again, triumph over it in the souls of his people, who, if they had faith, would have no suffering, as they would have no Sin. And then, in the theological department, I find it stated at page 98, that the Son of God did...
