Not illustrated. 1890 Excerpt: .as cleverly as a veteran sailing master, and as they pace the after deck with a weather eye to windward they can tell when to shorten sail as well as the oldest salt afloat. I know many a young lady who can put an unerring hand on the jib topsail halliards, and slack away smartly when it s time that the kite shall come down lively. I don t think you can find a more thoroughgoing sailor, whose body and soul are so wrapped up in canvas and the salt sea wave, than merry Miss Helen Smith, the daughter of genial ex-Commodore James D. Smith, of the New York Yacht Club. Her earliest recollections, and certainly her sweetest, are of dashing whitecaps, rolling, tumbling porpoises, and the merry whistling of a spanking breeze among the shrouds, as her father s trim craft, the Estelle, bowled bravely...
