From this comparison it may be possible to deduce some measure of the relative efficiency, as propellers, of single and twin screws; and the discussion will probably have a practical interest for ship builders and ship-owners generally. The opinion appears to be generally entertained that in deep-draught ships it is preferable to employ a single screw, because any assigned speed can be attained with a smaller engine-power than would be required with twin screws. This opinion is based rather upon a priori reasoning than on actual experience; very few trials having been made with twin screws in deep-draught merchant ships. Moreover, recent experience with ships of war points in the contrary direction; and, after a careful analysis of all the facts...
