FRUIT SITUATION: NOVEMBER 1980 (CLASSIC REPRINT) (PAPERBACK)DOWNLOAD

FBC LTD, 2018. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Fruit Situation: November 1980 In response to seasonal declines in citrus supplies, September's index of prices received by growers for fresh and processing fruit advanced to 213 up percent from August, but still percent below a year earlier. Nevertheless, grower prices are expected to fall seasonally during the fourth quarter and stay below year-earlier levels, reflecting the larger supplies of both citrus and non citrus. Although most retail fresh fruit prices will also decline seasonally during october-december, they will remain above last year because of the rising costs of marketing. Even so, relative to the retail prices of other foods, fruit will be a good buy. The October 1 forecast of the citrus crop indicates a record million short tons - Dominating the citrus scene is the prospect of another record orange crop, 276 million boxes, up 1 percent from last season's all-time high. Production in Florida, at 203 million boxes, is 2 percent below last season's record crop but still 24 percent above Prospective orange production in California is set at a record 65 million boxes, 9 percent more than last season. Production in Texas is expected to increase 39 percent from last season's small crop, but output in Arizona will probably be down 20 percent.
