This brings the cost of fumigating with pyrethrum to 60 cents or more for each thousand cubic feet of space, with camphor-phenol, about 40 cents, and with sulphur, about 10 cents. If these materials are purchased in quantities, the cost can undoubtedly be reduced considerably. In preparing a room for fumigation, it must be remembered that all openings must be made as tight as possible, even to the extent of stuffing cracks about doors and windows with rags or paper. All closets and other places where mosquitoes may hide should be left open during the process. Screening If we wish to avoid the necessity of such fumigation which, to say the least, is tiresome, we should see that the windows and doors are carefully screened, and if we wish to enjoy the evening air. the porch should also be so enclosed. The netting should, if possible, have a mesh of not less than 20 strands to the inch. The screening sold on the market is usually 12-mesh and for most of our mosquitoes seems to answer very well although the finer mesh is preferable. A larger mesh will allow many mosquitoes to crawl through the openings. The doors may be provided with a screen vestibule built with both sets of doors opening outward and large enough so that a person entering must close the outer door before opening the inner door, and thus foil the attempts of many mosquitoes to enter. Screen doors...
