

Procedure Matters: Construction and Deconstructivism in European Civil Procedure (Paperback)

By Xandra Kramer

Eleven International Publishing, United States, 2013. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book. On January 20, 2012, Xandra Kramer was installed as holder of the Chair of European Civil Procedure at the Erasmus School of Law, Erasmus University Rotterdam. Kramer specializes in private international law and civil procedure, and takes an interest in empirical legal research. She has joined the Erasmus School of Law interdisciplinary research program Behavioral Approaches to Contract and Tort. In her inaugural lecture, which is documented in this book, she stresses the importance of effective procedural law rules to enforce rights and act as the guarantor of fundamental rights. The enforcement of cross border rights is complicated by the huge differences in civil procedure, as well as legal and practical obstacles. These complications jeopardize the right of access to justice and fair trial, and have as a result triggered the harmonization of civil procedure. Kramer illustrates that the gradual harmonization of civil procedure within the EU is largely ad hoc and lacks both a vision and an architectural plan. The deconstructivism in European civil procedure is a potential source of injustice and may endanger rather than improve access to justice. This necessitates a fundamental...
