PROCEDURAL MOTION CONTROL TECHNIQUES

Condition: New. Publisher/Verlag: LAP Lambert Academic Publishing | For Interactive Animation of Human Figures | Computer animation of human figures poses a major challenge because of the many degrees of freedom involved and the range of possible human movement. Traditional techniques such as keyframing only provide support at a low level - the animator tediously specifies and controls motion in terms of joint angles or coordinates for each degree of freedom. We propose the use of higher level techniques called...
