Excerpt: .by our solemn declaration of 1776 should have been found so insecure in our immediate neighborhood, at a time, too, when we were boasting in thousands of orations, on this our anniversary, of the great progress we had made in securing both against violence! And the worst of it all was that some even of our own countrymen should have been suspected of being privy to such raids. I shall touch this matter no further than to say that not long afterward adequate preparations were made to remove this pestilent annoyance, and to reestablish perfect freedom in crossing these waters. This work was so effectively performed in 1824, that from that time to this personal liberty has been as secure there as in any other best protected part of the globe. Snob is my third example of the practical advance of human freedom under the trumpet call made 100 years ago. I come now to a fourth and more stupendous measure following that call. The world-wide famous author of it had not been slow to grasp the conception that the abolition of all trade in slaves must absolutely follow as a corollary from his general principle. The strongest proof of it is found in the original draft of his paper, wherein he directly charged it as one of the greatest grievances inflicted upon liberty by George, that he had countenanced the trade. The passago is one of the finest in the paper, and deserves...
