Stefan Szczelkun, 2018. Paperback. Condition: New. Second Deluxe ed.. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .This practical core of this book is a collection of about 200 exercises to experience basic human ability. The senses pick up information in various media from outside and inside the body. They monitor what is happening. This sensory information then travels along nerve pathways to the brain where it is compared with past experience, analysed and evaluated. The result of this processing is a decision to do or not do. Doing something inevitably requires movement and muscle action; whether it be writing a poem, taking evasive action in the face of attack or chewing the top of your pencil. This sequence provides a model for the organisation of the book. The first half is a detailed description of each sense, each mental faculty and a set of basic muscle actions. The second part is a collection of about 200 exercises to allow the reader to experience our most elemental human abilities. The author has an idea of cultural renewal starting from basic human abilities. This book may find wide appeal as a retro-styled exercise book, illustrated with pages from the authors research notebooks. There is much to surprise and delight readers. The idea of collecting exercises to explore our basic abilities arose from previous research into basic human life supports published by Unicorn Bookshop in Brighton, and Schocken Books New York, as the trilogy Survival Scrapbooks: Shelter, Food and Energy . Whilst researching Survival Scrapbook Energy I came across a detailed description of standing in Iyengar s classic book Light on Yoga . I then thought of Francis Bacon s Idols of the Mind as similarly describing an elemental ability. I wondered if a collection could be made which covered...
