Excerpt: . and the fifth one neither a Mason nor an Odd Fellow, but an ardent friend of Mr. Keith. The balance of the Grand Jury were, unfortunately, young and inexperienced men. After the Court adjourned the following appeared in the Chicago Daily Journal of Sept. 13, 1851, over the signature of S. A. Hurlbut, one of the Counsel: Editors Chicago Journal, Gents: --As a great deal of excitement was stirred up some time since, by the story of an allotted murder committed in this town, with which the name of Mr. Samuel L. Keith was connected by public report, it is proper that the same publicity should be given to the justification which that gentleman has at length received under the law. In the time of the excitement alluded to, no pains were spared here or elsewhere to give currency to the charges against Mr. Keith, and although in many persons who lent themselves to the feverishness of the day, the excitement was excusable, yet in many others, the occasion was eagerly caught at, for gratifying their private hostility, under the mask of a zeal for public justice. It is to the latter class that the sweeping charges of murder, paraded in the newspapers and hawked about the streets, are traceable, and to such, I have no doubt, the recent action of our Grand Jury has proved a wholesome lesson. At the present term of the Court, a Grand Jury composed of our most noted...
