In the New International Encyclopedia, vol. xvi, page 340, is a handsome colored plate of the parasites that live on flowering plants, which may be effectvely utilized. Scripture Basis: . . If any would not work, neither should he eat (2 Thess. 3: 10.) The word parasite literally means one who eats at another s table, and so has come to be applied to all forms of living creatures that subsist on the bodies of other animals or plants. They are lazy, little organisms that will not labor for their own bread, so to speak, but steal their living from those who are industrious and thrifty. These parasites always cause injury to the creature upon whom they thus live, either by destroying the beauty of their form, or by sapping the life they require for themselves. There are two classes of parasites, those who live only a short time upon their hosts, and those who stay with them permanently. Some of these live upon the skin, and others are found only in the intestines. The simplest form of parasite is that which is found in water, feeding on all sort of organic debris. The Argulus travels about on the bodies...
