In 1613, nis dispute with Grevinchovius, minister Neal s Hist, at Rotterdam, appeared in print. He was at the synod ofof the PuriDort, in 1618, and informed king James s ambassador from ; p3J t time to time of the debates of that assembly. When he had been twelve years in the doctor s chair at Franeker, he resigned his professorship, and accepted of an invitation to the English congregation at Rotterdam, the air of Franeker being too sharp for him, as he was troubled with a great difficulty of breathing. Upon his removal to Rotterdam, he wrote his Fresh Suit against Ceremonies, but did not live to publish it himself, for his constitution was so shattered that the air of Holland did him no service: he had determined to remove to New England, but his asthma returning at the beginning of the winter, put an end to his life at Rotterdam, where he was buried in November, 1633. He was a very learned divine, a (rict Calvinist in doctrine, and of the persuasion of the Independents with regard to the subordination and power of the classes and synods. His writings were voluminous, chiefly controversial, and consequently as much disregarded and forgotten as the controversies which occasioned them. AMES (joseph), the celebrated typographical historian,...
