Not illustrated. 1912 Excerpt: .7 = VnpxAx+n (86) Endowment An Endowment Assurance provides for the Assurance. payment of the sum assured either at death within n years or on survival of that period, and it consists, therefore, of the temporary assurance above mentioned combined with a pure endowment to provide the amount in event of survival. These two benefits are mutually exclusive, because, if the sum assured become payable under the term portion, the endowment is not payable; while, on the other hand, if the endowment be payable on survival, the term assurance would have expired in normal course. The combination of the two gives the single premium for an endowment assurance, namely: $-A = A_i + nEx$ (87) $\times n \times n$ Or what is the same thing: $-A = A_i + A \times 1 \times M \times t \times j \times JS$ To express the temporary assurance and the endowment assurance in terms of annuity values, let us first investigate formula (85) for the value of a temporary assurance: The form of this expression is similar to that of formula (77), and the same kind of verbal reasoning may be applied to it. Other We may now pass to the computation of annual Annual premiums for limited payment policies, term assurance premiums, annuities, etc. If a Whole Life policy be taken by annual premiums limited to n payments, the value of the sum assured payable at death remains the same, but the premiums fall due over a shorter period; therefore the premium during such...
