

The Dalai Lama Next Door Volunteering with Tibetans in McLeodganj

By Hugh Morrison

CreateSpace Independent Publishing Platform. Paperback. Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. 118 pages. Dimensions: 9.0in. x 6.0in. x 0.3in. The small Indian town of McLeodganj (Dharamsala) in the Himalayas was once just a forgotten footnote in the history of the British Raj - but in 1959 all that changed when His Holiness the Dalai Lama arrived after being forced to flee from Tibet. Since then, McLeodganj has become the headquarters of the exiled Tibetan government, a world centre of Buddhism and a safe haven for thousands of Tibetan refugees. Inspired by Michael Palins BBC series Himalaya, Hugh Morrison spent four months as a volunteer among the Tibetan exiles of McLeodganj, working for Lha Charitable Trust as editor of their magazine, Contact. With detail and wry humour, he describes daily life in Little Lhasa as well as Himalayan travels to places such as Mandi, the city of temples, Shimla, the summer capital of British India, and the desolate no mans land of some of the worlds highest and most remote settlements on the Indo-Chinese border. This book will appeal to those interested in volunteer work in McLeodganj or anyone who wants to find out more about this unique, beautiful and...

READ ONLINE
[7.56 MB]

Reviews

Very useful for all group of people. It is amongst the most incredible pdf i actually have read through. Its been written in an extremely straightforward way and it is just right after i finished reading through this pdf by which basically modified me, change the way i think.

-- Felicia Nikolaus

These sorts of ebook is the ideal book offered. It can be writter in simple terms rather than confusing. I discovered this pdf from my dad and i advised this publication to understand.

-- Mr. Alejandrin Murphy PhD