Stacia Harper, Director Regulatory Affairs, Ohio Partners for Affordable Energy . . . a must read for anyone who cares about energy! -- Patty Durand, Executive Director, Smart Grid Consumer CollaborativeSUMMARYUtilities around the world are making or planning massive investments to bring distribution grids into the information age. Simultaneously, customers and communities are poised to place increasing demands on distribution grids and utilities in the face of mounting technical, weather, and cybersecurity challenges. Smart Grid Hype and Reality asks provocative questions about massive grid investments in light of the demands and challenges, and presents definitive research on smart grid capabilities, costs, benefits, drivers, and limiters in typical and ideal case scenarios. It is designed to help utilities, regulators, customers, and other stakeholders understand available technologies and the industry systems utility, customer, and regulatorygovernance that ultimately determine the value delivered by distribution grids and utilities. Leaders (community, regulatory, utility) can use this information to anticipate the type of grids and utilities needed to meet societys future needs, and develop the technical,...
