Not illustrated. 1779 Excerpt: .but rarely seen before, And cries, a king must fall, or kingdoms change their sway. Such were our counter-tides at land, and so Presaging of the fatal blow, In their prodigious ebb and flow. The royal foul, that, like the labouring moon, By charms of art was hurried down, Forc d with regret to leave her native sphere, Came but a while on liking here: Soon weary of the painful strise, And made but faint essays of lise: And evening light Soon shut in night; A strong distemper, and a weak relief, Short intervals of joy, and long returns of grief. V. The sons of art all medicines try d, And every noble remedy apply d; With emulation each essay d His utmost skill, nay more, they pray d: Never was losing game with better conduct play d. Death never won a stake with greater toil, Nor ere was fate so near a foil: But But like a fortress on a rock, Th impregnable disease their vain attempts did mock; They min d it near, they batter d from afar With all the cannon of the medicinal war; No gentle means could be essay d, Twas beyond parly when the siege was laid: Th extremest ways they sirst ordain, Prescribing such intolerable pain, As none but Caesar could sustain: Undaunted Caesar underwent The malice of their art, nor bent Beneath whate er their pious rigour could invent: In sive such days he susfer d more Than...
