Lionel Walk is a young black caddy at Brookline, the oldest, most exclusive country club in the city, where he is known by the nickname Train. A troubled, keenly intelligent kid with no particular interest in his own prodigious talent for the game, he keeps his head down and his mouth shut as he navigates his way between the careless hostility of his totes and the explosive brutality of the other caddies. Miller Packard, a sergeant with the San Diego police department, first appears on the boy s horizon as a distracted gambler, bored with ordinary risks. Train names him the Mile-Away Man as they walk off the first tee, and even months later, when they have become partners of a sort and are winning high-stakes matches against golf hustlers all over the country, the Mile-Away Man is a puzzle to Train, remote and intimate, impulsive and thoughtfu.
