Excerpt from The Debate in the House of Commons, on Wednesday, March 26, 1823: On Mr. Humes Presenting a Petition From Mary Ann Carlile, a Prisoner in Dorchester Gaol. Mr. Hume, in presenting a Petition from Mary Ann Carlile, complaining of hardship, and praying for redress, felt it necessary to state that he was aware there was a great prejudice against the name of Carlile; but he hoped the House, would in the present case divest itself of all prejudice against her, on account of her brother. He conceived that a very important principle was involved in the case of Mary Ann Carlile. The prosecution against her was instituted, not by the Attorney or Solicitor General, who he (Mr Hume) conceived were the only legal preservers of the peace and good morals of the community; but by Societies which he had long viewed with great jealousy, namely, the Society for the Suppression of Vice, and the Constitutional Association. These Societies were little better than conspiracies against the liberty of the subject; and the individuals prosecuted by them might be justly considered as their...
