Forgotten Books, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Teachings of Astronomy in the Primary and Secondary Schools and in the University In thus claiming entrance for their subjects into the earlier years of school attendance, the conferences are only seeking an advantage which the oldest subjects [language, arithmetic, geography] have long possessed. It As things now are, the high-school teacher finds in the pupils fresh from the grammar schools no foundation of elementary mathematical conceptions outside of arithmetic, no acquaintance with algebraic language, and no accurate knowledge of geometrical forms. As to [physics, astronomy, etc.] the minds of pupils entering the high school are ordinarily a blank. When college professors endeavor to teach [astronomy] to persons of 18 or 20 years of age they discover that in most instances new habits of observing, reflecting, and recording have to be painfully acquired by the students - habits which they should have acquired in early childhood. The college teacher finds that his subject has never taken any serious hold on the minds of pupils fresh from the secondary schools. It is inevitable, therefore that specialists in any one of the subjects which are pursued in the high schools or colleges should earnestly desire that the minds of young children be stored with some of the elementary facts and principles of their subject, and that all the mental habits, which the adult student will surely need, begin to be formed in the child's mind before the age of 14. If the changes recommended are all in the direction of increasing simultaneously the interest and the substantial training quality of primary and grammar school studies. On one very important question of general policy the committee...
