Mr. and Mrs. Babson are to present Massachusetts with the first building. Harlan H. Ballard reports the publication of the second edition of his latest contribution to literature, entitled The Tiler s Jewel (The Stratford Company, Boston, Massachusetts). William Hosea Ballou, Sc.D., Litt.D., reports the discovery at Fairfield, Connecticut, of the first American type of Swedish fungus, Polyporus borealis, a saprophyte, living on dead wood, and which is found on Norway pine stumps or logs. Its flesh is spongy at birth, but dries light and exceedingly tough. Its color is golden yellow, after aging, and it arises with many fronds, spreading out until it covers the top of the stump. In Sweden, the species is resupinate, that is, lies on its back. The American form grows upright, its fronds forming the shape of a bowl. The value of the discovery lies in its...
