Forgotten Books. Paperback. Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. 36 pages. Dimensions: 9.0in. x 6.0in. x 0.1in. Excerpt from History and Literature in Grammar Grades The connection between history and literature is so intimate that the treatment of the latter in its broad sense might include the former, without violence to either. Considering each in its more restricted meaning, however, and particularly in its commonly accepted scholastic sense, the reason for the separation of these subjects in the caption becomes apparent. In presenting the claims of history and literature to a place in the curriculum of the elementary school, I do not feel that I am advocating the introduction of new subjects into our already too crowded course. History has been assigned a place for many years, in the majority of our schools, and literature has received, at least, a passive recognition. The actual instruction in both has been far from satisfactory; in quantity it has been for the most part nominal and uncertain; in method, aimless and desultory. That these subjects have not been - are not now - adequately appreciated by the vast majority of the educational guild of this country, will be readily conceded. During the past decade, the methods of instruction in nearly all the other branches of elementary school work have undergone radical changes, and have reached a wide range of development.
