Excerpt from Foreign Agriculture Circular, Livestock and Meat: March 1981 Hides and skins exports increased almost $10 million. Declines in cattle hide sales were more than offset by increases in calf and kip skins. Sales increases occurred as major buying countries worked off some of the accumulated inventory of late 1980 and early 1981. Live animal exports increased in value by about $40 million. Canada, after lifting its des certification requirement on October 27, 1980, was particularly attracted to the abundance of overfed cattle on the u.s. Market. Canada s cattle industry in 1981 witnessed low-market prices and restricted cattle feeding for most of the year. This was a result of above-average grain prices that encouraged imports of heavyweight cattle and high-quality beef.
