

Searching for Sitala Mata: Eradicating Smallpox in India

By Mph Cornelia E Davis MD

Konjitpublications, United States, 2015. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 218 x 186 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .In 1975, Cornelia E. Davis, MD, MPH, was a pioneering African American woman doctor fresh out of medical school. Davis felt an overwhelming gratitude for her life's opportunities, and sought a way to give back. Her bold choice would benefit millions of lives. The World Health Organization hired Davis to work in its landmark smallpox eradication program. Davis traveled to India, where she scoured the countryside for the last remnants of the brutal, deadly disease. Connie didn't allow entrenched sexism, or caste taboos to deter her from her fascinating mission. She tracked smallpox through the Thar desert on camelback and across volatile Indo-Bangladeshi borders. She negotiated with smugglers and fakirs. She met Mother Theresa. She climbed to the base camp of Mount Everest. Finally, her symbolic search for Sitala Mata, the Hindu smallpox goddess, came to a positive conclusion. An international certification team declared smallpox eradicated in India. To this day, smallpox is the only disease that's been completely wiped out. Davis played a role in stopping a pestilence that's dogged humanity for thousands...

DOWNLOAD

READ ONLINE
[3.56 MB]

Reviews

Completely essential read book. It is one of the most remarkable publications I have got to study. Once you begin to read the book, it is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding.

-- Santina Bogan

This pdf is great. I am quite late in starting reading this one, but better than never. I am effortlessly able to get a delight from looking at a composed publication.

-- Samara Hudson