Not illustrated. 1822 Excerpt: .will, says he, if I remember right, is like an even balance which can never turn without a weight, and must necessarily turn with one. But whence comes the weight that necessarily turns it? From the understanding, answers he; the last dictate of the understanding necessarily turns the will. And is the understanding also necessarily determined? Yes, by the effect which the objects around us necessarily have upon us, and by the circumstances in which we necessarily find ourselves; so that from first to last our tempers, words, and actions, necessarily follow each other, and the circumstances that gave them birth, as the Second, third, and fourth links of a chain follow the first, when it is drawn along. Hence the eternal, infallible, irresistible, universal concatenation of events, both in the moral and material world. This is, if I mistake not, the scheme of that great divine; and he spends no less than four hundred and fourteen large pages in trying to establish it. I would just observe upon it, that it makes the First Cause, or First Mover, the only Free Agent in the world; all others being necessarily bound with the chain of His decrees, drawn along by the irresistible motion of His arm, or, which is the same, entangled in forcible circumstances, unalterably fixed by His immutable counsel. And yet even upon this scheme you needed not, Sir, be so afraid of free will; for if the will be like an even balance,...
