Excerpt from The Latter-Day Saints Millennial Star, Vol. 72: February 3, 1910 The act of discarding certain books or epistles, as was done by the compilers of the Bible, has contributed in no small degree to the lack of clearness in certain places in the Book. If one were to receive a letter from a friend, or a business letter, from which a page had been lost, considerable difficulty might be experienced in making out the clear meaning of the whole. If a correspondence were carried on between two persons, and one letter in a series were lost, a different understanding from what was intended might result. At least, the recipient would have a good deal of trouble making out what was meant by references in letters following, to the letter that was lost. But this fact would not in anywise affect the validity of the letters that did arrive safely. The facts above-mentioned regarding the disposition of books of Scripture by men, are given to call attention to the other fact, that men also may have wilfully erred in making translations of what we still have in our present-day Bible. We accept the Bible in its pre sent form, but believe that if other writings had been handed down the Book would have been more complete. The Latter-day Saints accept the Old Testament as well as the New Testament. The writer has come in contact with a number of fervent Christians who attach little importance to the Old Testament. But, since Jesus deemed these Scriptures of value in testifying of Himself (luke 4: 17-21) and Peter referred to them frequently (acts 2: 25-28 and elsewhere), and Philip found them...
