CreateSpace Independent Publishing Platform. Paperback. Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. 166 pages. Dimensions: 9.0in. x 6.0in. x 0.4in. Emma, 18 (originally appeared in Daughters, Book 1, The Heartbreak of Human Trafficking.) Six months have gone by. She and her new best friend, Alexis, leave the safety of Abundance, Montana, and the home of her foster father, Bailey Forbes, to head 200 miles back out into the cold world. Emmas college goal is Child Psychology and Criminal Justice, so that she can help other young girls in trouble. The University of Montana, Wyman, should be safe. After all, its a university, with security guards and campus police, and professors, and many other adults to look after the new students. All the other young girls rescued have been living in Baileys house plus Baileys employer, Lances house, while they get their lives back in order. By the end of the six months most of the girls have either returned to their parents, or have a job at Abundance, and have rented a house with the option to buy. Bailey and Heather (now recovered from her bullet wound) are planning their wedding. Everybody is happy and moving forward with their lives. Unfortunately, Emmas past comes back to haunt her right there on the college campus. Alexis tells her she should call Bailey, but Emma determines to take care of things herself. Excerpt from C 12 Dirk Pays Due to believing in self-defense, Emma and Alexis have both taken a night class in Taekwondo. Dirk is one of the upper classmen, and has no idea what Emma has just experienced, and shes a bit pissed! Charyeot! Connor said. Everyone went to attention, then a collective bow by everyone. First jumping jacksbegin! Connor said, and began. Whoever I get, he or she...
