With Walker in Nicaragua, the Reminiscences of Elleanor Callaghan Ratterman; II. Walker-Heiss Papers, Some Diplomatic Correspondence of the Walker Regime in Nicaragua There was constant excitement and alarms, up the 25 of Nov when it was secretly whispered that Granada was to be evacuated and de stroyed by fire.10 and the advice of all, was for the Lady s and children to embark on the Steamer, to leave G, for when the Natives, saw their City, their churches leveled to the ground, they would raise, and come down to G. Prepared to fight, and to besiege us. Brother and I prepared everything our trunks and baggage and left in charge of our Brother in Law to send to us, to the Steamer.11 When the Steamer pulled up her anchor, and left for the Island of Ometepe a Volcanic island situated in the middle of Lake Nicaragua.
