Excerpt from Oxford Lectures: And Other Discourses Called and versed in unreal matter, such as astrology or the Chinese doctrine of auspicious and inauspicious sites. It may be suggested, perhaps, that legal science is nothing but the application of logic (at all events if logic be taken to include the systematic use of induction and analogy) to a special aspect of human life. My answer to this would be that every science is equally an application of logic to some class of facts. Logic is not a special science or art at all, but the condition or instrument of all knowledge alike. With metaphysics, and perhaps pure mathematics, it stands apart, presupposed in every science, but specially attached to none. It may be said, again, that Jurisprudence is one of a group of special studies which all come under Politics in the wide sense, and that some parts of what is called legal knowledge are really quite as much political. To this I should not gravely object, or not at all. Political science as a whole, however, cannot be said to be much organised at present; and the special branches, jurisprudence, political economy, and whatever others there may be, must meanwhile exist on their own footing if they are to exist at all, and even encroach on the general theory of politics when they find it convenient.
