Grant, His Services and Characteristics: As Sketched and Delivered by Major-Gen. B. S. Roberts, Before the Faculty and Students of Yale College, by Invitation, October, 1865; And Again Read to the Legislature of Connecticut, by Special Invitation, in 1866, at Its Session at New Haven, Conn Remarkable times produce remarkable men. The progress that culminates in revolution is slow, but revolution takes relentless power, and speed forges and forms greatness of character, and brings into prominence genuine manhood. The energies and strength of men reach more sudden maturity in the struggle, though they were born with the infant, slept through adolescence, and only burst the mind's swaddlings when the occasion that magnetized their growth, vitalized their action, and magnified their power, bursts upon them.
