History tells us that before a Waterloo there must needs come Moscow. If, at this period, the older societies had been content to stay quietly in their strongholds broadening and deepening, and gathering strength to battle with the coalition formed against them, they might perhaps have lived for thirty years to come. But no. In 1853 Alumni Hall was completed, at a cost of twenty seven thousand dollars, of which eleven thousand was contributed by the graduate members of Linonia and Brothers. With the cry of victory they rushed within its walls, only to find them cold and bare. One who was himself in college at the time and witnessed the excitement over the new building says that the halls were too large, paralyzing, barn-like. The net result was one of weakness rather than of strength. From now on the end might be plainly seen, and perhaps we shall do best to pass this part of our subject over; only noticing, as a coincidence fit to be remembered, that in the same year, 1871, did the old societies, as it were give up their charters, by a transfer of their books to the college library, and the Junior exhibition after a long period of purging of wordy. Dialogues and colloquies, become more strongly coveted than ever by the foundation of the prize. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
