Springer, Netherlands, 2011. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .The welfare of domestic poultry, particularly those kept under intensive housing conditions is a subject ~n which many, often divergent and conflicting views, are held. This divergence, may be the result either of insufficient knowledge of the facts of particular poultry husbandry systems or a differing interpretation of those facts. With regard to poultry and the laying hen in particular, there is a need to gather together a basic knowledge of avian behaviour in all the circumstances and systems of husbandry under which birds are presently being kept. That knowledge should lead to the development of interpretative and hopefully predictive theories which in turn will allow us to meet the recommendations of Article 3 of the Council of Europe Convention on the Protection of Animals Kept for Farming Purposes: that animals shall be housed, provided with food, water and care in a manner which - having regard to their species and to their degree of development, adaptation and domestication - is appropriate to their physiological and ethological needs in accordance with established experience and scientific knowledge . In furtherance of those objectives a small...
