CODE NAME PHOENIX (PAPERBACK)

Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, 2014. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . In Code Name Phoenix, we deal with the idea of sinking a modern warship with a converted Q-ship, using a combination of automatic anti-aircraft cannon, a field gun and MANPAD missiles against any air counter-attack. Although not unknown in history, we can think of several Q-ships and we discuss their history in the book, this has not been done in decades. But it can be done, I am sure. The idea is to get close and to open up with devastating effect, using a mixture of high explosives, armour piercing, incendiary and depleted uranium shells taking the vital parts of the ship, the bridge, the aircraft hangar and above all, the CIWS system with the main deck gun out as quickly as possible. The lack of armour on modern ships will be to your advantage but you better swamp her defensive and offensive systems or she will retaliate most violently. Q-ships, by their very nature also has no armour and the weapon systems very much homemade affairs. Then, you will need some kind of a maskirovka, a deception plan to get the warship to meet you and at the same time be relaxed enough to approach inside gun range. You also need to be sure to sink any approaching rubber duck or small boat wanting to board you and especially be able to defeat an airborne assault. Once you have done this, you may have crippled the warship, her vital parts below the waterline will not be damaged unless you have a torpedo or plunging shells which is impossible at short range unless using heavy mortars. The best you can hope for is to start a fire, if uncontrollable, she may...
